

Life in Circles

- December Update

Last One....

Welcome back to the final 'Life in Circles' of 2019. Can you believe it. 2019s got a big, fat tick next to it now. We can all just say, "Completed it mate!" now I guess but honestly I know everyone says it but I loved every minute of 2019. I passed all my GCSE's, winning the British Under 21 semi final, getting a championship team place, travelled abroad and qualified for the Under 19 European Final, then came runner up in the British Under 19s - All I'm saying is I'm happy with how this season has gone. Anyways let's crack on and just let you all know what I've been up to in December.

Mixing it up

So to kick off the month my brother, dad and I we took part in a charity go kart event called Kartmegeddon. All the profits went to GRASA, and hats off to Mitch Godden because to organise everything how he did would of taken a lot of time - one of the raffle prizes was a TV, I mean seriously that's a cool raffle prize. Then later in the month we had a go at indoor skydiving up at Milton Keynes, which again was something really cool and if you haven't seen, head over to any of my social media's to see the funniest video. To set the scene it's - My Brother vs the Huge Wind Tunnel vs The Instructor...please just go check it out.

Thank you all my Sponsors

During this month, what I did was I tried to visit as many of my current sponsors in person as possible because at the end of the day, if I didn't have any sponsors I couldn't chase my dream, so literally I can't thank you each and everyone one of you enough. What I have done as well is, I've tried to every day do a sponsor thank you so if your interested in any of my sponsors business's please either head to my posts where all their contact details are or head over to the sponsor section on my website and that'll take you straight to their websites.

Racing in the Mud

It's December, what do you expect when you try and race? Mud, rain, and a lot of cleaning to do. This month was Round 2 of the Pitbikes at Eastbourne and this time it was under floodlights too - fancy I know! But all in all another pitbike event that was such good fun. I dropped one point in my heats then came second in the A final to Ed (Kennett)but like I say it was a great laugh, plus if your near, pop in to watch as it's FREE to watch.

Poultec

Every month I try to just give you all a little insight into what we do at Poultec, just because I know a lot of you really haven't got a clue how it works or what it is. But simply it's a Speedway based apprenticeship scheme where at the end of the course we get a qualification in engineering and a Speedway diploma.

This month we went into the history of the sport, where it's been and where it might lead to based on the past, plus the mechanics of different aspects of the bike. Included as well is obviously lots of gym style work and lots of reasons why plus probably one of my favourite bits which is the engineering centre. I finished up my engine bung that I made last month and then started to make some wheel adjusters.

Seasons Greetings

CHRISTMAS! I had a great Christmas spent at home with all my family and this year I got a pogo stick which I wanted. Yes I did just say pogo stick. Why? Just because really and I thought it would be another challenge to master so it's a work in progress and if anyone's thinking of getting one, honestly they wear you out quick.

Then Boxing I headed to Lilly's where I spent most of the Christmas week, which was honestly just great so a big thank you to them for making me feel like one of their family all the time because genuinely amazing.

New Year, New Destination

And then that takes us to now. Well I say now but it depends when your reading this but basically as of writing I'm sat on my first plane of two, where I'm heading to Australia for 3 weeks. So just a hint you now what next months and the first of 2020 is going to be all about. I'm just really excited to see what happens and just take everything on board. Plus I'll also be representing my country because there will be 2 Team GB test matches and that's such a huge honour.

Thank You

I think that's about everything, and I just want to say a big thank you to everyone that has read my 'Life In Circle's' throughout the course of 2019, including everyone who has commented, given feedback and just everything.

HAPPY NEW YEAR to everyone and let's all make 2020 a success.

See you all in the new year at more than likely a speedway track near you...
